FUNDACIÓN
Intras

Madness, from the perspective of INTRAS Foundation, is a very broad term that recognizes cultural, social, philosophical and historical views beyond purely biological and health related premises. For this reason, our contest seeks to collect and show all possible visions of madness, dismantling the clichés, stigmas and prejudices built around it.

Since its first edition, the Locografias Award has photographically documented the multiple recovery processes of people suffering from mental health problems; those personal and unique processes that involve reconnecting with oneself, searching for purposes and motivations and overcoming obstacles, in a long-distance race beyond the negative effects of the disease.

Locografias wants to break with the idea that mental health problems are things that happen to 'the others', to those who live at the margins of society, since mental health is linked to the very essence of all people and therefore, it is an inseparable part of our human condition. The more views we collect in each of the editions of this award, the more complete and rich the portrait of what they call madness will be.
